The doorkeeper said he would call the family back to prove Russell was mistaken Russell got angry and struck the doorkeeper, nearly knocking him down, and then drew a pistol and threatened to blow the doorkeeper's brains out. The latter said be meant no offence, when Russell, still threatening, cocked his pistol, and the doorkeeper ran incide the canvas. Col. Ames, being near, approached, and remarked to Russell that it was not the place to raise a difficulty. Russell responded, "I will kill you too," and shot at Col. Ames. Another circus man remonstrated with Russell as the Kelly brothers approached, and commenced firing. Col Ames was shot twice while endeavoring to escape. A spectator by

FAYETTEVILLE N. C., Nov. 3, 1870. Dear Journal:-I arrived here bright and early this forenoon on the fine steamer D. Murchison, Capt. Garrison, after a very pleasant night spent on the boat. I found everything there, as usual, cleanly and comfortable, and feel myself under many personal obligations to Capt. Garrison for attentions and courtesies received at his hands. The fare on the boat is excellent-The proceedings against the illegal registra- fully equal, in many respects, to that offered the traveler on the far-famed Bay Line, and the sleeping accommodations are vastly superior. I was glad to find many evidences of life and prosperity among the people of this good old town. Trade is brisker than it is at Wilmington. Considerable quantities of cotton are coming in to market. The merchants are hopeful, and with much reason, that the old-time prosperity is again coming back to them, and we of Wilmington should heartily echo the wish. He was very kind and attentive, and drove me around this afternoon to many points of interest in this neighborhood. He is an active man, full of business from the crown of his head to the sole of his toot, and whatever he touches seems to prosper. He has two mills at work, one in the town and the yond here, and his cotton gins, and corn, wheat and wool machin-ry (this latter carding the wool ready for the spinner's hand) the State, and will, I hope, before many years, be surmounted with a cutton fac-afternoon, at about 2 o'clock. It came from the old brick row, on Hay street, just at the foot of Haymount, but, fortunately, It is stated here that a fresh disturbance has the fire was soon extinguished. The Fire Engine and Hook and Ladder Companies both turned out promptly, and but for the earnest labors of the young men there would, in all probability, have been more than one houseless family here to-night .-The wind was blowing, at the time, a perfect gale from the West, and if the fire had got under full headway it is probable that much of the business portion of Fayetteville would have been in ashes, ere this.

Mr. Simon Wolf, in order to reply to many inquiries from other cities, visited the President to-day for the purpose of ascertaining why the asraelites had been omitted in the recent appointment of Indian agents. He was informed that the persons appointed were so appointed according to the new policy recommended by various religious denominations who have missionary societies. The Jews havhawever, he expressed his readiness to appoint some Israelite to the office of Indian
